in collaboration with the Laboratory

Arab acculturation in literature and criticism

From the Faculty of Arts and Languages and with the participation of

L'Agence Universitaire de la Francophonie

Organise an international conference entitled:

Research in French language and literature in the context of the Algerian university:

State of play, innovations and perspectives

Research in French language and literature has known, for a little more than a decade, a certain dynamic. With the help of the context in the establishment of the EDAF (franco-algerian graduate school supported by the FEF), mobility to the different French universities for the traineeships, the collaboration between Algerian laboratories and french laboratories for the Organization of conferences, co-supervision... these have enabled to establish a fertile field for research in these areas. Often, the topics chosen for academic and scientific events are characterized by interdisciplinarity; whether in the field of literature, science of language or didactics, classical teaching boundaries seem not to present epistemological problems anymore. Thus, we discover unpublished works on original corpora and the appearance and promotion of some new subdisciplines.

From the meeting of these domains and from the dynamics that the research follows, the idea of creating, through this meeting, a space for dialogue between different generations of researchers in different languages in order to discuss the state of play, was born.

In this sense, this conference aims to open, through conferences and communications, the dialogue between lecturers, speakers and the public around the following axes:

1. News in language sciences: interdisciplinarity, specialization and overspecialization.
2. The ways (methods) of research in literature
3. - The didactics of languages in an academic context.
4. Neurosciences and Learning.

5. The French language, Arabic language and English language: contact of languages, methodological transversality and interculturality.
6. The language and languages facing the challenges of translation and self-translation.

Conference languages: French, English, Arabic
